training

iSi Environmental Services (iSi) and Fort Hays State University's (FHSU) Virtual College have teamed to provide regularly scheduled environmental, health and safety training!

iSi has been training workers since our company's beginning in 1991. In the spring of 1997, we started holding publicly-offered classes on a regular schedule. The program has grown steadily and trains hundreds of workers each year.

FHSU's Virtual College is the continuing education arm of the university. The Virtual College markets and distributes more than 500 distance learning courses throughout the world and provides FHSU distance education opportunities for individuals interested in pursuing affordable excellence in undergraduate and graduate programs. They also seek to serve lifelong learning needs of alumni, the military and others in need of quality, affordable education.

Our partnership with Fort Hays State University's Virtual College gives you the opportunity to earn continuing education credit. iSi's staff of highly trained, highly experienced staff provides the trainers and technical content for the courses.

more about onsite training

For your convenience, iSi can provide training at your facility. Our clients have chosen onsite training courses for many different reasons, including:

- Training can be scheduled when it's most convenient for you or at a time that is sooner or later than a scheduled class.
- Our flexible scheduling allows us to train your employees at non-traditional times and various shifts such as evenings, overnight, early mornings and weekends.
- You can have several workers all trained at one time, reducing per person rates and travel costs. This also standardizes refresher due dates for those classes that require annual re-training.
- Onsite training allows you the opportunity to have your class customized to your company's specific programs or specific needs.
